MINT WIRELESS PARTNERS WITH AIRDATA TO INTRODUCE ITS PAYMENT SOLUTION TO LARGE CORPORATE ENTERPRISES

- AirData will exclusively introduce Mint's integrated mobile and online payment solutions to over 1,000 of its established corporate customers.
- Leading mobile and online payment technology solutions now in reach through AirData's successful national sales presence across all industries.
- Partnership leverages strength of market leaders in enterprise mobility solutions.

Sydney, 5th November 2009: Mobile and online payment solutions provider, Mint Wireless Limited (ASX: MNW) ("Mint"), has signed a strategic partnership and supply agreement with Australia's leading national enterprise mobility systems integrator, AirData. AirData is a certified Microsoft and Motorola enterprise mobility partner, incorporating mobile computing devices, wireless infrastructure and mobile applications as part of their core product and services offering. AirData has over 30 years experience in mobility, providing true end to end solutions to a wide variety of industry verticals including, Field Sales, Field Service, Retail, Transport & Logistics, Government, Healthcare and Warehouse & Distribution.

The partnership will see AirData take on Mint's leading mobile and online payment solutions as one of their key product and services, resulting in greater exposure of an integrated payment solution to Australian businesses, ranging from sole traders to large corporate enterprises. AirData's national sales presence will bolster Mint's existing channels through the introduction of its payment solutions to a range of existing and new AirData corporate customers.

Mint's mobile and online payment solution is compliant with all relevant international and Australian banking industry benchmarks including Payment Card Industry (PCI) / Data Security Standards (DSS) compliance. Mint's market leading mobile and online payment solutions coupled with AirData's strong technical knowledge and support base in the hardware and software integration will culminate in significant cost and operational benefits to the range of potential business end-users. The partnership will leverage the core competencies of the two businesses to offer customers a true plug-and-play payment solution with minimal integration times and capital outlay.

Mint Wireless' CEO, Alex Teoh, said: "We are pleased to have partnered with AirData to provide a fully integrated mobile payment system to a range of businesses. AirData has been operational for over 30 years and has emerged as a leader in software and systems integration in Australia,"

"AirData is the market leader in the enterprise mobility space with a diverse and enviable customer base. They are an excellent partner for Mint in the corporate enterprise segment, and we look forward to working closely with the AirData team to introduce our market leading mobile payment and online solutions to AirData's new and existing customers." Mr. Teoh said.

AirData CEO, Steve Evans, said: "AirData has partnered with Mint Wireless as leaders in the field of developing and marketing mobile and online payment solutions to businesses. We see significant value in the partnership for our broad range of existing customers and will look to further strengthen our successful history of providing mobility solutions to the market,"

"AirData has been very successful in creating and adding value to our customers' businesses. We believe that the value proposition for Mint's payment solution is significant to some of our larger corporate customers. This partnership will ultimately create a new and robust sales channel for both businesses." Mr. Evans concluded.
